BRITISH RAILROAD WORKERS EMBARGO NON-UNION COAL

DECISION BRINGS NATION FACE TO FACE WITH THREATS OF A GENERAL STRIKE

GOVERNMENT HAS MACHINE READY PREPARED TO RESIST, IT IS REPORTED

(By United Press)

London, May 13—British railroad men today placed an embargo on "black leg" coal.

Executives of the union instructed followers not to handle any coal loaded by non-union representatives.

The executives ordered followers of the independent sections of the firemen and engine men union not to handle non-union or foreign coal. The union announced it would use its strength to see that no member was "victimized" to disobey the order. The decision brings the nation face to face with threats of a general strike.

Transportation workers were expected to take the same action. The joint action of the two big unions would prevent the unloading of non-union coal at the docks, the transfer from ships or transportation along the rail lines.

Individual workmen in the two unions previously refused to handle such coal but they were dismissed and their places filled from the ranks of thousands of unemployed.

The action of the employers led to the declaration of an independent rail strike in Glasgow, effective tonight. Similar action was expected at Nottingham. Meanwhile with many industries crippled through lack of fuel and with the unemployed list growing daily the nation was prepared if a general strike should develop. The machine put in place when the triple alliance threatened, was ready for operation. All that remains was to call volunteer workers to their posts and to restock the food and supply dump.

JOHN F. DIETZ IS GRANTED PARDON

AFTER SERVING 10 YEARS IN WAUPON PRISON—WAS SENTENCED FOR MURDER

(By United Press)

Madison, Wis., May 13—John F. Dietz, serving a twenty year sentence for murder, today was pardoned by Governor John J. Blaine.

Dietz left the Waupun prison at nine o'clock accompanied by his wife and daughter. He had served ten years in the prison for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Oscar Hart.

In announcing his pardon Governor Blaine expressed doubt as to his guilt. The pardon of Dietz ends one of the most dramatic incidents in the history of the criminal court of Wisconsin.

For six years prior to his conviction, Dietz held off process servers and conducted a single handed fight against powerful lumber interests.

Dietz was convicted in 1911 and sentenced to life imprisonment. The sentence was afterward commuted to 20 years.

Dietz stood off a small army of deputies while barricaded in his barn on his farm. Hundreds of shots were exchanged during the battle of several hours' duration.

Dietz surrendered because he feared for the safety of his family.

Dietz refused the service of a lawyer in his trial and conducted his own case. The case created much interest and assumed political importance. Following his conviction Mrs. Dietz campaigned the state in her husband's interests telling the story of the battle and evidence leading up to it.

(United Press)

Berlin, May 13—Walter Von Simons, former German foreign minister, probably will be appointed German ambassador to the United States when diplomatic relations are resumed, it was learned today.

Marshall Field 3rd is now a member of the board of directors of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. He succeeded James A. Stillman, president of the National City bank of New York.

POLISH INVASION OF UPPER SILESIA THREATEN EUROPE

SAYS PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE, —GERMANS SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO KEEP ORDER

(United Press)

London, May 13—The peace of Europe is threatened by the Polish invasion in Upper Silesia, Premier Lloyd George told the house of commons today.

"I am frightened," he declared, "what may happen if confidence is not restored. The Polish invasion is in complete defiance of the treaty of Versailles. Unless stern justice is meted out immediately it will be fatal to the peace of Europe."

Lloyd George said there was no reason why the allies should object to Germany using her own forces to restore order in her own province. That would be simply fair play, he declared.

Outlawry Feared

Oppeln, Upper Silesia, May 13—Unrestrained terrorism in Upper Silesia was feared today. Polish followers of Albert Korfanty lacking supplies and food are not out of control.

Thus far the Poles have acted as organized military bands. If not held under control it was feared a reign of outlawry would be instituted. A general strike of German workers became effective here following a German protest to General Leland, French commandant, of "French unfairness."

Leland was asked by the German plebiscite representative regarding claims that an armistice has been arranged with Poland retaining portions of three-fourths of Upper Silesia.

"It is a swindle," Leland declared. "No such an armistice has been arranged."

Fear Female Bluebeard Will Attempt Suicide

(United Press)

Honolulu, Hawaii, May 13—Precautions to prevent suicide by Mrs. Lydia Couthard of Twin Falls, Idaho, held here as an alleged feminine "Bluebeard," were taken today by the Honolulu police.

They said they had information which caused them to fear Mrs. Couthard might take her own life.

At the request of Mrs. Southard's fifth husband, Chief Petty Officer Paul Vincent Southard of the United States ship Monterey, authorities were persistent today in refusing to permit Mrs. Southard to be interviewed.

"She refuses to talk to anyone, anyway," they said.

Emergency Tariff Bill Goes to Conference

(By United Press)

Washington, May 13—The house today refused to agree to a senate amendment to the emergency tariff bill and sent the measure to conference.

REGULAR TROOPS ORDERED SENT TO W. V. COAL FIELDS

TO STOP GUERRILLA WARFARE NOW BEING CARRIED ON THERE

(By United Press)

Camp Sherman, Ohio, May 13—Orders were received today for federal forces here to be prepared to move into Mingo county, West Virginia, to quell guerilla warfare there.

Major General Reed, commander of the fifth army corps area, notified Colonel Hall, commander, to hold the Nineteenth Infantry in readiness. The regular strength is 575 men and includes rifles, trench equipment, motors and medical sections. Trains were awaiting here to transport the troops on a moment's notice.

Guerilla Warfare in W. Va., Coal Fields

Williamson, W. Va., May 13—Guerilla warfare continued along the river today. The fighting between mine strikers, state police and county sheriffs which opened at dawn yesterday, reigned in Merrimac, Striggs, Rawk and Auburn counties early today, according to meagre reports reaching here. One man was dead and four wounded, according to the latest information.

Wire communication with the fighting area had been cut since the battle started and definite information was lacking.

Four Are Killed in Fighting

Williamson, W. Va., May 13—Fighting between factions in the Mingo county mine war caused three deaths today bringing the total casualties to four dead and four wounded.

Carl Butcher and Chas. Stafford were killed at Spriggs today, according to a messenger who arrived here. In the vicinity of the industrial warfare at Auburn, five miles from Spriggs, and twelve miles from here, it was reported more quiet. The battle opened when Harry Staten was killed at Spriggs early yesterday. A continuous exchange of bullets has been in progress since then. The skirmish died down slightly this afternoon following a report that Superintendent Lindsay of the Auburn Coal company, would seek to establish peace. There was no positive indication that Lindsay would succeed however.

Secretary Directs Investigation

Washington, May 13—Following the cabinet meeting today Secretary of War Weeks announced he had directed Major General George W. Reed, commander of the fifth army corps area, to investigate the gun fighting in Mingo county, W. Va., coal region.

International Fur Exchange Announces Deficit

(By United Press)

St. Louis, Mo., May 13—The International Fur Exchange, the largest wholesale fur house in the United States, has issued a statement to stockholders informing them that a deficit of $9,202,000 exists in the finances of the company.

The statement said reorganization plans are being considered by large stockholders.

The sudden and violent collapse in the spring of 1920 in the wholesale markets of furs was given as a reason for the company's business.

The statement announced the assets at $8,883,000 and indebtedness as $18,085,000.

The notification is signed by Philip B. Foulke, president, by order of the board of directors.

Consumer Stores In Hands of Farmers

Jamestown, N. D., May 13—All but three of the stores owned by the Consumers United Stores company have been turned over to the farmers, according to announcement made by C. W. Reichert, recently appointed receiver by Judge Moellering in district court in Minot. The policy of turning the stores over to the farmers is being employed in winding up the affairs of the company, Mr. Reichert said.

STILLMAN QUITS DIVORCE ACTION

(By United Press)

New York, May 13—James A. Stillman has "quit" it was reported here today.

Attorneys for Stillman said that he has asked for an indefinite postponement of the secret hearings in his divorce suit which were to have been resumed next Thursday at Poughkeepsie.

Referee D. J. Gleason agreed to fix May 25 as a tentative date for resuming the case, but it was understood it would be postponed from time to time indefinitely.

This action was interpreted by friends of Mrs. Stillman as meaning that her husband had decided to drop the proceedings. The same view was taken by other persons closely connected with the case.

President's Lucky Day

(United Press)

Washington, May 13—His is President Harding's lucky day. Friday the thirteenth shivers fall to worry him. He was nominated at Chicago on Friday.

He was inaugurated on Friday. So much for Friday. As to the thirteenth, count the letters in the name of Warren Harding.

Polish Insurgents Declare Independence of Upper Silesia

(United Press)

Copenhagen, May 13—The independence of Upper Silesia will be declared today by Albert Korfanty, Polish leader, according to dispatches here.

Korfanty, former Polish plebiscite commissioner in Upper Silesia, directed the armed forces into that region and seizure of more than half of the country. The occupation was much the same as that of the Vilna region by General Zeligowski. Although Poland won most of the region by plebiscite, the Poles hope the allies will give them the occupied portions.

CONTINUATION OF RY. TROUBLE MEANS GOVT. CONTROL

SAYS SENATOR CUMMINS AT THE INTERSTATE COMMISSION HEARING ON TRANSPORTATION

(By United Press)

Washington, May 13—Continuation of the present railroad situation means government control of the railroads, Senator Cummins of Iowa declared today at the interstate commerce commission hearing on the transportation question.

"Unless some way is found to reduce expenses and increase revenue the national treasury will have to pay the deficit which is growing under private operations," Cummins said.

This would mean federal control, he added.

Retailers Must Reduce Prices, Say Spokesmen

(By United Press)

Washington, May 13—The Harding administration is using "pitiless publicity" as a club to beat down retail prices.

Regularly and almost unanimously cabinet officers and others holding important places declares that retail prices are higher than the prices of raw materials warrant and that the unwillingness of the retailer to reduce is contributing to industrial stagnation. These statements are made in speeches, talks with newspapermen or in other ways that will bring them before the consuming public.

The apparent aim of the effort is: First, to convince the retailer that he must reduce prices for his own good, as well as for that of other classes, and second, to drive home to the buyers that they can get lower prices if they demand them often and forcefully.

President Harding himself started the drive in his message to congress when he declared retail prices were too high and suggested a congressional investigation.

Since then the Federal Trade Commission has issued a report on which the president based his statement. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and D. R. Crisinger, controller of the currency, have declared in speeches that the retailer is holding off inevitable reductions.

Scarcely a day passes that the retail price reduction doctrine is not laid before newspapermen.

Correspondents went to see W. P. G. Harding, governor of the federal reserve board. Harding declared that retail price reductions had in many cases not kept pace with those of raw materials. He cited the case of a retailer who made 150 per cent on dry goods after the jobber's price was reduced.

The same correspondents went to see Attorney General Daugherty who made similar statements.

"Those shoes," said Daugherty, "I paid $17.50 for a pair like that last year. A similar pair cost $12.50 this year, but with the present prices of hides, the retailer might easily have made more on this pair than the $17.50 pair."

Assistant Attorney General Goff then said he bought a hat for $15 in New York last year.

"I got one just like it for $6 this year," he said. "The dealer explained that he couldn't get $15 for them."

"That's it," Daugherty said. "Three housewives with powers for positive conversation can do more to convince a retailer he should reduce prices than this whole department."

Snake Convention Ends in Casualties

Darlington, Wis., May 12—Snake convention was attended by many fatalities today.

Margaret and James Conly, walking down the road from the Argyle, Wis., creamery stumbled over a great ball of snakes. They killed eight blue racers and three spotted adders. Many other snakes escaped. The dead ones averaged more than three feet in length.

The snakes were emerging from winter quarters.

MISS LUCILLE ATCHERSON

The appointment of Miss Lucille Atcherson of Columbus, O., to be secretary of the Paris embassy is being considered by President Harding.

CATHOLICS AND SOCIALISTS CLASH IN MEXICAN CITY

AS MANY AS 50 DEATHS ARE REPORTED TO HAVE RESULTED

(By United Press)

Mexico City, Mexico, May 13—As many as fifty deaths were reported today to have resulted from religious and political fights in Marila, capital of the state of Michoacan last night.

The fight began when a Catholic demonstration against socialist propaganda was fired upon by the socialist sympathizers. Many persons were wounded.

Vivid Wool Wigs Latest For Vamps

(United Press)

London, May 13—Not content with merely emulating the "vamp," as originated by her American sister, the London girl is camouflaging as Cleopatra.

In this connection she has assumed a new "transformation" which, however bears no resemblance to human hair. The new fad is exactly the kind of a wig a woman might wear to a fancy-dress dance masquerading as Cleopatra, but it is made of wool, and brightly colored wool at that—vivid blue or cerise, or perhaps green or purple.

There is the straight fringe in front, the "hair" hanging straight and lank over the ears at the sides and down to the neck at the back. These wool-on wigs are very popular among the set that once indulged in the "airy, fairy" boudoir cap.

Hill Declines Japanese Mission

(United Press)

Washington, May 13—David Jayne Hill has finally decided not to accept the ambassadorship to Japan, it was learned today.

At the same time it was learned that there is a strong chance that Hill will be made ambassador to Germany when relations with that government are resumed.

Huck Finn Was Considered 'Harmful'

It is interesting to remember when one sees "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" listed as one of the 30 books necessary for all-around culture by the New York public library, that when the book was new, some 25 years ago, the Boston public library and others about the country refused to place the book in the circulating departments. The reason, as published, was that the book would be harmful to the youthful mind.—Milwaukee Journal.

Opossum Pest.

The species of opossum native to New Zealand wears a very beautiful coat which does not resemble that affected by the opossum of this country. The animal which was introduced into Australia many years ago destroys fruit trees and is regarded as a pest, but opossum skins are so valuable that its value as a fur bearer outweighs any damage it may do to trees.

GEN. PERSHING IS APPOINTED CHIEF OF STAFF

WILL BECOME ACTIVE COMMANDER OF U. S. ARMIES ON JULY 1ST

(United Press)

Washington, May 13—General John J. Pershing will become the active commander of all the armies of the United States on July 1.

Secretary of War Weeks today announced that the A. E. F. chief will become the chief of staff on that date, holding this office along with that of commander of the general headquarters whose function will be to keep all elements of the army prepared for war.

The assignment of Pershing to this double task reveals radical army reorganization. Heretofore, while head of any army administration officers did not take the field in time of war, Pershing in the case of war would be the active commander of the army in the field. As Pershing's executive assistants Weeks named General James G. Harbord who will exercise the administrative function performed by the present chief of staff, Peyton C. March.

(By United Press)

Loren Williams, partner in a garage business at Mount Vernon, Ill., was found guilty by a jury previously and given the same sentence.

BRITISH COAL STRIKE SETTLEMENT FAILS

SITUATION DAILY BECOMING MORE SERIOUS—TROOPS AND SAILORS READY FOR TROUBLE

London, May 13—Great Britain's coal miners strike is no nearer settlement. The transport workers federation is determined to prevent the unloading of foreign coal and the government is equally determined that coal for vital purposes shall be unloaded. Troops and sailors are being moved to the various areas of the country where trouble may arise. There is a possibility for an appeal for volunteers to unload coal. The cabinet has met three times within the last 24 hours to try to solve the difficulty.

At a meeting of the transport workers executives, a resolution was unanimously passed against the importation of foreign coal and promising aid to the miners. They declared they would take steps to consult with the railwaymen's organizations to make the blockade against foreign coal more effective.

It is declared Sir Eric Geddes made an ineffective attempt to convince the transport workers of the national inconvenience which would result from the embargo. He said London's sewerage efficiency would be so impaired that the health of the inhabitants would be endangered.

Government circles freely admit that the situation is daily becoming more serious. The unloading of Welsh coal in Glasgow by nonunionists is proceeding, but it is reported that an ugly spirit is developing among the federationists.

Grain Gambling Bill Passes House

(United Press)

Washington, May 13—The house today passed and sent to the senate the Tinchin bill aimed to prevent gambling in grain futures. The vote was 269 to 69. The bill places a tax of twenty cents a bushel on grain sold in purely speculative transaction where buyer and sellers do not physically possess, and gives the secretary of agriculture broad power of regulation.

CHILD WELFARE BOARD MEETING

Various Changes in Laws Regarding to Work of Board Discussed by the Members

APRIL REPORT MADE PUBLIC

Welfare Worker Makes Trips Into Nearly Every Corner of the County, Gaining Superficial Survey

The Child Welfare Board held its monthly meeting at court house May 7. All members were present with the exception of Wm. Syreen, the county commissioner. Miss Louise Pye, district supervisor of the State Board of Control, attended the meeting, and discussed the various changes in the laws relating to the work of the Child Welfare Board which were made during the recent session of the legislature.

The executive secretary gave the following report of the work since the last meeting.

During the month of April a variety of cases have been handled by the Child Welfare Board and definite action taken in several instances.

Trips were made into nearly every corner of the county from Jenkins to Emily and Little Pine and from Fort Ripley to Dykeman. This has made a superficial survey possible and acquainted the worker with the county as a whole.

The notice asking for a home for "Glady's" which the papers of the county so kindly published brought a generous response. There were more available homes than eligible children so that it has been necessary to establish a waiting list. The Child Welfare Board are glad to have such a waiting list as it will enable them to handle other cases of such a nature more promptly and efficiently. Already two girls have been placed and arrangements have been made for a third. Further effort will be made this month to find a place for a boy ten years of age for the summer months. He needs to be kept busy and to be in a wholesome environment. Also for a boy who is misunderstood at home and who is very unhappy and abused.

Through the secretary of the board complaints were filed against the alleged fathers in two un-married mother cases in hopes that paternity might be established and support be guaranteed until the child becomes of age. The chairman of the board filed a complaint of juvenile delinquency in the probate court and the child was committed to the Board of Control. An effort was also made to assist a mother in securing the custody of her child. As frequently happens circumstances developed which made it advisable to reconsider the case and to have a more intensive investigation made.

Two mothers allowance cases were reported to the executive secretary. In each instance the situation of the applicant as to her eligibility was thoroughly discussed. Two quarterly visits were also made in distant parts of the county. The mother allowance as granted by the county according to the state law are doing much to relieve the burdens of these mothers. There is no other way in which children can be as well cared for or as economically.

The executive secretary gave several informal talks and discussions about the work. The various Mothers Clubs of the county are interested in the welfare of the children and have expressed their desire to cooperate in any possible way. A request came from the rural school teachers for a short talk about the work at their meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce, Brainerd. Mrs. W. H. Gemmell, chairman of the board, also spoke to the teachers stressing particularly their possible influence as voters and urged all to become familiar with the various laws and measures relating to education, children, etc. By so doing they would be in a position to be of true service, but not until then.

Over two hundred calls were made, the records brought up-to-date, numerous investigations were made, thirty-eight letters written and the office work in general cared for.

Shower for Bride-to-Be

Mrs. Robert Jaeger and A. F. Foltz entertained 35 ladies at the home of the former on Thursday evening at a shower given in honor of Miss Elerene Ebinger, a bride-to-be. Miss Ebinger was pleasantly surprised and received many beautiful and useful gifts. The home was prettily decorated, the color scheme being pink and white and cut flowers being used lavishly. The evening was spent in music, games and cards. A two course luncheon was served.

Roman Baths Overpraised.

The baths of ancient Rome so wonderfully pictured by painters and story tellers, do not compare favorably with the modern bath. Judged by standards prevailing before the coming of Christ these baths were wonderful, but measured by standards of today the glories of Rome, one of the highest degree of civilization in the ancient world, would be declared unsanitary and likely be condemned as menaces to the health of users.

Fear Led to Dish Covers

Dishes were not covered at first for the purpose of keeping the food warm. They were covered from fear—the fear of poison. In the Middle Ages people were afraid that poison might be introduced into food between the kitchen and the table. Hence the cook was ordered to cover the dishes and the covers were not removed until the master of the house sat down to eat.

PROCRASTINATOR

By ELIZABETH R. GREENE.

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

They were a gay little company that descended the steps of Hill Crest Farm to the waiting hay rack, and for the twentieth time that morning Mariana wished she had been ready.

But it was always this way. Somehow Mariana could never manage to be quite on time, and had long ago been affectionately dubbed by her friends the "Procrastinator."

Nevertheless, Mariana was a general favorite, and it was with genuine regret that the little party of pleasure seekers set forth without her that bright morning.

"Couldn't you come later, Mariana?" coaxed Bettina, loitering behind the others.

Mariana shook her head. "I can't," she sighed. "I've got all my packing to do."

"Couldn't I help you tonight?" generously proffered Bettina.

Mariana dimpled. "Thanks, Betty," she smiled, "you're a dear; but I can't go, really."

"Oh, come along, Betty," called Polly from the hay rack. "She'll come at the eleventh hour, same's she always does!"

Slowly Mariana went back to the neglected packing. Tomorrow they were all going home. "All" meant Mariana's five girl friends, Miss Kent who chaperoned the little party, and Mariana.

Leaving her unfinished packing she donned the pretty white dress thrown over a chair. Her vivid imagination pictured the delighted surprise of her friends when she should join them and—yes, it must be admitted, the whole of the vision was glorified by the tremulous hope that she might see "him."

A radiant vision was Mariana that morning, and passersby turned to look admiringly at the trim, white-clad little figure tripping gaily along the dusty roadside.

But as the sun rose higher and the heat increased Mariana's enthusiasm waned with her lagging feet.

How beautiful it was out here! Somewhere in the green branches overhead a bird carolled joyously and in the distance came faint sounds of the haymakers. Somewhere, too, in this enchanted land lived The Man.

Oh, it was shameful that she should think of him so! But since that morning when she had chanced to be at her window in the early dawn and caught a glimpse of him carrying a dew-wet burden of lettuce and cucum-

MISS ALEXA STIRLING

Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, Ga., for three consecutive years woman golf champion of the United States, has gone abroad to compete in British and French women's title tournaments.

Back to the farmhouse door below she had been unable to put the strong, sunburned face and stalwart form quite out of mind.

And this was her last day of freedom. Her chance of knowing him ended today! Tomorrow meant noisy, smoky Brewster and—Aunt Amelia. Mariana sighed dismally. However, being a cheery little person, her gloom soon vanished as she caught a glimpse of the big, ripe berries near by.

"Blueberries!" she exclaimed, rising and beginning to gather the tempting fruit. Presently a glance over the stone wall revealed more berries beyond in the pasture.

Laughing softly, Mariana scaled the wall with pretty grace.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Mariana, her eyes following wistfully the distant shadows of forest trees. If only she might rest in those cool woods awhile!

Wearily she plodded on under the noonday sun, reaching at last the welcome shadows of the wood. Throwing herself down upon the sweet pine needles, she drew deep breaths of the pine-scented air. Presently her tired eyelids drooped lower and lower and she slept.

Mariana sat up and rubbed her eyes. It was sunset. The prospect of night overtaking her in a strange wood was not at all pleasant; besides, what would Miss Kent think?

Mariana rose and hurriedly retraced her steps through the forest gloom. Suddenly she paused—terrified. Near by, dimly outlined in the gathering shadows, loomed the huge black body of an animal.

Breathlessly she stared back into the gleaming eyes regarding her. Then above the beating of her heart came the sound of a merry whistle from the pasture.

Sobbing with relief, Mariana fled toward the welcome tones. Hurrying feet crashed through the underbrush behind her, briars caught and scratched her, but she sped blindly on. When the hot, panting breaths were close beside her, a man's voice called suddenly, then—oblivion.

When Mariana opened her eyes she looked into the face of The Man.

"The bear, has—has he gone?" she stammered, attempting to rise.

The Man threw away the remaining water that had not been used on Mariana's head.

"You mean Rover, there, I reckon?" he smiled boyishly.

Her eyes followed his gesture. There on the ground beside her stretched a big, black dog!

"Oh!" gasped Mariana faintly. "I—I guess you'll think I'm a 'fraid-cat!" she smiled tremulously, the lovely color coming into her cheeks in her confusion.

But the man didn't tell her what he really thought until six months later. Then—well, it only concerned Mariana, anyway!

Snake No Match for Ants.

That ants should be able to kill a snake may seem incredible, at first. When an enemy is sighted the alarm is given at once and the whole community of ants arises in a body. They set upon the reptile, striking their pinners into it at thousands of points. The attack is made with such enormous numbers that the snake has no chance of escaping. When the snake is dead the ants will tear off the flesh in small pieces, taking all away with them except the bones and skin.

THE COAL TRADE AND THE PUBLIC

(Minneapolis Journal)

Senator Elkins from the coal state of West Virginia raises the familiar cry of "Buy coal now." He urges that two hundred thousand coal miners be idle, and that the railroads need coal to carry now, whereas they will be short of cars to carry it next fall and winter. He predicts another great coal famine, unless consumers come forward with their orders, so that the mines may be continuously operated.

No doubt Senator Elkins is right. Coal ought to be moving now and all summer long, in order to prevent the repetition of conditions with which the public has become all too familiar. Yet there is a "buyers' strike" on, and its consequences are not easily foreseen.

But the basis of it is that the public does not trust the coal trade, and does not believe the continued high prices are justifiable. Have Senator Elkins and the coal trade done anything to see whether coal cannot be brought down to a price level more consistent with the prices of other commodities?

Soft coal has come down, to be sure, but has it come down to where it ought in justice to be? As for anthracite, a joint committee of New York real estate organization states the case when it says: "The present retail price of anthracite is uneconomic and really beyond the ability of the ordinary consumer to pay."

Is it true that hard coal owners get three dollars a ton royalty at the mine? That report should be cleared up one way or the other.

The indictment of the coal industry by the Calder committee of the senate, charging it with speculation and profiteering of the most flagrant description, has had its share in causing public distrust and public unwillingness to pay the prices now demanded. Business conditions do not favor orders ahead of real needs. Is it to be wondered at that the mines lie idle for lack of orders?

Let the coal industry rehabilitate itself in the esteem of the public by dealing justly. Let price scales be revised and unwarranted profits squeezed out of the business. That is the way the "buyers' strike" is being overcome in other lines. The public will co-operate when it is convinced that it is being squarely treated.

COFFEE TREE MAY BE SURE DEATH TO FLIES

The department of agriculture is on the trail of the pesky and deadly fly, experiments starting today to find out if the coffee tree gives off a peculiar poison fatal to flies. The late Prof. George F. Holmes of the University of Virginia, grew a sapling from a seed of a Kentucky coffee tree. He claimed that it was death on flies. The "Holmes tree" was planted in his garden as his only memorial, and a metal plate and an iron fence distinguished it. Now a sapling from that tree has been sent to Washington for tests by the department of agriculture as to the fly-killing qualities claimed, with the hope that the seeds may be distributed throughout the country to exterminate flies.

A TREE FOR EVERY SOLDIER

Forestry week brings an interesting suggestion from Illinois. It is that a tree be planted in honor of every soldier, living and dead, who served in the great war. They would be placed along the Lincoln, Dixie and other national highways now open or to be opened later.

James Kaley, a Chicago newspaper man, made the suggestion and the Chicago Tribune is about to start activities to put it through. Efforts will be made to enlist federal and state co-operation, that of service and patriotic societies and of private individuals.

Each tree would be marked with a soldier's name. No distinction of rank would be noted. The suggestion has been made that the name plates of the boys who died in the service be placed on trees at conspicuous points.

It is a wonderful idea. Since about 4,000,000 boys entered the service, it would mean 4,000,000 trees making the highways a thing of leafy beauty for mile upon mile, clear across the continent and branching out into the various states. How conspicuously they would add to the forest beauty of the United States, and how splendid a tribute they would constitute for a splendid page of American history!

In many ways it is the most adequate and beautiful memorial idea which has been presented. It is likely to gain popular approval.

Two men in Lorain, O., beat each other up and got arrested because each thought the other was a thug trying to hold him up. Why not license the hold-up men, and give them badges, so they'll be recognizable?

Now D'Annunzio is being urged to run for parliament in Italy. A sad waste! Why doesn't he come to America and go on the Chautauque circuit? Or in vaudeville?

At last we're going to have peace with Germany! Yet we don't see anybody getting ready to celebrate.

Films cannot be shown in Pennsylvania, a censor rules, "unless they have a serious purpose." Well, making people laugh is a serious business. Ask any humorist or clown.

AMUSEMENTS

At the New Park

John G. Adolfi, who directed Georges Carpentier in "The Wonder Man", which will be shown at the New Park theatre tonight for the first time, is a firm believer in screen realism such to the sorrow of Robert Barrat, who plays the heavy in the picture, an American society drama.

During the "shooting" of the boxing scene both Carpentier and Barrat "went the limit" in displaying their ring prowess—with Barrat on the receiving end of a great part of the time. Barrat had been the screen's heavyweight champion.

Even the fastidious sporting and dramatic critics, who witnessed the boxing bout admitted that Carpentier scored a clean cut knockout—and it was not a "movie" knockout either.

At the Lyceum

Marie Doro in "1210" will be the feature attraction at the Lyceum tonight.

The director was Herbert Brenon, one of the few very great men who have given us pictures that will be part of the history of photoplays.

No intimation of the baffling problem, the very backbone of this feature is shown at the beginning of the picture, and is made use of in a picture that will grip you as you have seldom experienced. The nerve-racking experience of a young and sensitive girl at the hour of midnight in a lonely house far in a sparsely settled neighborhood, with strange noises and slowly moving doors and as the clock strikes the covers on the bed moves. This is a sufficient indication of the suspense, which this picture holds to make one who is even not overly curious want to see it. It is the one picture among the many that you have seen that defies the most imaginative to tell just how it would end.

The 2nd episode of "Ruth of the Rockies" is also on the same program.

Hard Times

"Elderly married men have a pretty hard time of it. Their wives care for them no longer, and pretty girls actually despise them."

The speaker was George Ade. He went on:

"In the lounge of a fashionable restaurant I overheard one night a low voiced conversation between an elderly married man and his wife.

"Bill, the wife blessed, I don't like the way you looked at that girl in the outrageous yellow gown."

"Well," said Bill savagely, "she didn't, either."

Builds Rainbow Bank

A monument to the persistence of the pioneer spirit is a bank building in northern South Dakota, a unique structure, its owners are sure. It is made entirely of rock from the fields and prairies roundabout. But the startling part of the story is that the work of preparing these stones was done by one mason, unassisted. For almost a year he toiled, splitting the glacial boulders with iron wedges, reveal their rich color—pink, red, purple, brown, yellow and gray.

PUBLIC GETTING SLACKER LISTS

NAMES OF THOSE WHO DODGED THE DRAFT ARE PRINTED IN SOME NEWSPAPERS.

WAR DEPARTMENT IS CAREFUL

Tries to Avoid Injustice Through Similarity of Names—Only Persons Having Authority May Arrest Any Slackers They Find.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—It was not only during the war that slackers and general derelicts in the field of duty gave trouble to the war department. The department officials have been struggling for some time with what are called the slacker lists and it is only now that they seem to have been able to emerge from some of their difficulties.

Throughout the United States today in places the lists of the names of men who dodged the draft are being printed in the newspapers. Some papers are printing them and some are not printing them. The difficulty is that even yet there seems to be some doubt in places as to whether or not a newspaper which prints the name of a supposed slacker, but who proves not to have been one, is free from the dangers of being sued for libel.

It is the intention of congress, so it is said, to print the slacker lists in the Congressional Record, and this, some persons hold, will preclude the possibility of any man, who feels that he has been injured, recovering damages. The Congressional Record contains the official records of the proceedings of the congress of the United States. Therefore, one opinion is that anything which appears therein is privileged material.

Men who saw service in the army, and especially those who were on the fighting line, naturally are desirous that the names of those who dodged their duty to their country shall be made public in order that they may be treated with the contempt which they deserve, and also, if they are arrested, may meet with the punishment which they deserve. So it is that the various veteran organizations, including the great American Legion, are desirous that the names of the slackers shall be given the widest publicity possible.

Where Confusion May Arise.

One trouble which will come to some men who served their country well, may arise from the fact that there are a good many men in the United States of the same name. So it is that if John Smith in a certain locality is set down as a slacker it may be that the people will think it is another John Smith, a man who served his country well. It is understood that an attempt will be made to avoid trouble of this kind by giving the specific address of each slacker, that is, the address which he gave at the time of the draft.

There are cases in point. The name of a man from New York appeared on a slacker list of his district. It was discovered that another man of exactly the same name, and from the same district, received a high decoration for heroism in the Argonne Forest. The man who went to the front was given the Medal of Honor, which is the American equivalent of the British Victoria Cross. So few of these medals are given, because it takes the highest kind of an act of courage to win one, it is probable that no one would confuse the slacker with the hero in this case, but all men do not win decorations and thereby get a place by themselves in the field of honor. So it is that some men who did their duty well may find that they are confused with other men who did not do their duty, but who bear their names.

Army headquarters have explained that certain rules governing the arrest of slackers have been misunderstood by the public. It seems there was an impression abroad that anyone could arrest a slacker and that $50 would be paid to the arresting person for each duty dodger that he turned over to the army officials.

The regulations actually provide, it was stated at the war department, that the person arresting a slacker may be allowed the actual expenses incurred in delivering him over to the army authorities, but that the person who does the arresting must have actual authority to make the arrest. Seemingly this brings it down to the proposition that only a properly authorized person may make arrests, but that everyone is expected, if he knows the name and the whereabouts of a slacker, to provide the information and to do what he can to help in locating him.

It is said that there are somewhere about 100,000 slackers scattered over the United States. Of course some of the men who dodged their responsibility have gone to other countries, but this number is fairly negligible. The chief slacker, at any rate the one on whom the limelight has fallen, is Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who still is in Germany. In connection with the Bergdoll case it might be said that the Richard L. Kitchens post of Helena, Ark., seriously is considering the possibility of securing some court action by which Bergdoll may be forced to drop his first two names.

Drum-Beat in Africa Has Telegraphic Speed.

Marvelous System of Signaling Has Long Been One of the Wonders of the World.

News is carried by drum-beat in Africa at a rate as fast as the telegraph, writes A. S. Crawley in the London Daily Mail.

"The natives of Central Africa have a wonderful system of signaling from village to village by drum-beat," he says.

"Generally the property of the chief, these official drums, which are many, forming a set of varying size, are as a rule of the species known as incision-drum. This is a long, narrow, hollow cylinder, made from a tree trunk, with the ends closed.

"The drum is placed in either a horizontal or vertical position, the former producing the best results. Big drums carry more than ten miles.

"By relay a message may travel 1,000 miles in little more than the velocity of sound.

"The drum-telephone depends upon an elaborate code of sounds. European travelers often order their dinner and night's lodging at the next village by a drum-message. The villagers use it as we use a postal, telegraph and telephone service—and there are no charges.

"For the home service the drum plays the part also of the church bell, the clock, the town crier and the daily newspaper. For instance, Rev. James Roscoe, whose African adventures and discoveries have recently been reported, notes that it announced a birth or a death, the new moon and the weekly fast day.

"To help understanding of the marvelous code, as complete as a language, the remarks of Sir Arthur B. Ellis (writing of West Africa) are in point:

"To a European the rhythm of a drum expresses nothing beyond a repetition of the same note at different intervals of time, but to a native it expresses much more. To him the drum can and does speak, the sounds produced from it forming words and the whole measure of rhythm a sense."

"Thus, at a dance of 'companies,' in one measure they abuse the men of another company . . . then the rhythm changes and the gallant deeds of their own company are extolled. All this, and much more, is conveyed by the beating of drums, and the native ear, trained to detect and interpret each beat, is never at fault."

Midget Babies Often Thrive. Parents whose children are abnormally small at birth can take heart, for recent figures show that tiny infants frequently grow up quite robust, and of normal weight.

FEDERAL RULE OVER CONGRESSIONAL PRIMARIES MAY BE THUS RESTORED.

PEOPLE LIKELY TO APPROVE

Some Legislators Believe Decision in Newberry Case May Mean Congress Has No Authority to Investigate Expenses of Pre-Convention Campaigns.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington.—Federal restrictions under a decision of the Supreme court have been removed from the field of senatorial and representative primaries. Is it possible that this may mean that it will be easier in the future for some few gentlemen with senatorial ambitions "to get what they want"?

It may be that before much time has elapsed things will be restored to their old status, and that the United States will still continue to rule in party primaries in senatorial and representative contests.

It is the intention of several of the national legislators to introduce resolutions for an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which will make it possible for the government not only to control the elections of senators and representatives, but to control also the primaries. It will take some time, of course, to secure the amendment to the Constitution which is necessary, and there is always a possibility that it may not be adopted. Senators and representatives, however, in the main seem to believe that virtually all the people will approve of such an amendment and that it can be put into force without much difficulty. In the meantime, however, things are back where they were.

There has been time enough for the legislators to take some rather careful note of the effect of the Supreme court decision which was handed down in the case of Truman H. Newberry, senator from Michigan. The Constitution gives each house of congress the power to judge the elections, qualifications and returns of its own members. Now it is definitely known, by reason of the decision in the Newberry case, that this power does not extend to the primaries.

May Have Further Effect.
It is possible that the reasoning which led to the pronouncement in this case by the Supreme court may be carried farther, and that congress may determine that it has no authority in law to appoint investigating committees such as one which within the last year was authorized to look into the subject of the expenditures of money in the contest for the Republican and Democratic nominations for the presidency, and in the campaigns after the nominations were made.

It will be remembered that a committee of the senate, of which Mr. Kenyon of Iowa was the chairman, was extremely busy a year ago trying to find out how much money was being spent in behalf of the candidacy of Leonard Wood, Hiram W. Johnson, James M. Cox, William G. McAdoo, and the other Republicans or Democrats who were ambitious to be named by their party for the government's highest office.

There is seemingly a feeling that, if the government of the United States under a decision of the Supreme court has no control over the primaries in campaigns for federal offices, congress has no authority even to investigate to find out how much money is being spent to aid a candidate for federal office at the primaries, or, generally speaking, his campaign for nomination. Of course the elections are a different matter. The government has authority in federal elections, the decision referring to the primaries only.

What Earlier Ruling Might Have Done.
In Washington it is said by some men that if the Supreme court had decided the Newberry case 18 months ago, there would have been no investigation of the pre-convention campaign expenditures of ambitious aspirants for the presidential nomination and that if these investigations had not been held the whole history of recent political events might have been changed.

Congress always has been jealous of its investigating power. There have been investigations ordered at every session of congress for many years, and if one should look through the history of the deeper past it probably would be found that no session of congress ever has failed to order an investigation of something. Congress loves to investigate. Sometimes investigations are necessary and fruitful, but many times they are unnecessary and fruitless.

Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan can come back to the senate of the United States. He knows today that the alleged funded activities of his friends in his behalf when he was an aspirant for office have resulted in the removal of federal supervision over senate and house of representatives primaries. Some of the legislators believe that the Supreme court decision in a way is a blessing, because a disputed point has been settled definitely, and that now congress can go ahead in the work of preparing for submission to the people an amendment to the Constitution which will put everything pertaining to federal elections and primaries under the supervision of the government authorities.

INCREASES AS IT TRAVELS

Train in Egypt Picks Up Passengers and Freight as It Proceeds Along Line.

An American engineer tells of a train that will conveniently stop whenever freight or passengers appear by the side of the track. This railway is to be found in Egypt. The train at starting, as seen by the American, consisted only of the engine and coach, which might have been a baggage car with four windows cut in it, and a bench placed all around. But before it had gone very far the train came upon a couple of trucks filled with cane standing on the line in the middle of a cane field. These were attached to the front of the engine, which moved slowly along till they came to another batch. These were almost empty, but the cargo was piled on each side of the line, and Arabs rapidly loaded them, while the employees took advantage of the delay to water the engine.

This task was performed in the most primitive fashion by two water carriers, who, having placed a notched section of a date tree between the engine and the ground, to serve as a ladder, laboriously filled the goatskins, which are swung on their backs, at a ditch by the side of the track, climbed up the tree ladder to the engine and emptied their goatskins into the boiler. By the time it was full the trucks were loaded, and the train proceeded, pushing about a dozen trucks before it.

MANNA IN THE HOLY LAND

Still Continues to Fall, as It Did When It Nourished the Children of Israel.

The biblical story of the feeding of the children of Israel upon manna from heaven during their wandering in the wilderness on the way to the land of Canaan does not record a miracle, according to the American consul at Jerusalem. In an official report to the government the consul states that manna is found now in the regions of Upper Mesopotamia and Kurdistan, and along the Persian frontier. It falls, he says, in the form of dew during September, October and November, and lodges upon the leaves of oak trees. It immediately hardens and assumes the form of a grain. Early in the morning, before the heat of the day, it is gathered by spreading sheets beneath the trees, which are shaken, and the manna is then collected and stored for winter, to be used as a food, or shipped to Bagdad for sale in the bazaar.

The manna falls on other vegetables, including grass, but all of it is lost except that which is gathered from the oak leaves. The manna is sweet, and is eaten by the natives as a substitute for sugar or honey. The consul says it is highly prized for its aromatic flavor.

Snake-Charmer's Secret.
How does the snake-charmer charm? asks a writer in the Popular Science Monthly. That's one of the questions we've always asked ourselves. And now an English doctor tells us one of the secrets.

Take the case of the cobra, for instance. It is a very venomous snake, yet the snake-charmer is not harmed when bitten by one. The secret lies in the fact that the charmer "milks" the cobra before he allows himself to be bitten. He makes the cobra bite into a piece of meat, thereby expelling two thirds of the poison in its poison gland. When the charmer allows the snake to bite him immediately thereafter, there is not enough poison left in the gland to do any harm.

What is the next step? The charmer makes the snake bite a fowl while he squeezes the remaining drops of poison out of the snake's gland; the fowl dies, and the charmer wins the confidence of his audience.

The Joy of Living.
I have never had much money, but I have always enjoyed the things at hand. I have become so familiar with the face of Nature that it is as the face of an old friend and I know and love it in every mood. My years have been full of joy, but they have been years of simplicity and economy. I have never sated myself with anything and the bloom is still on my life.

I have kept young because I have kept free from worldly and selfish ambitions. If I had been miserly and grasping, I would have been old and unhappy long ago. There is nothing like love to keep you young—love for your fellow man and for Nature—and love is Nature's final law. Someone once asked me how I had kept so young and I answered that I had been born young and had never thrown my youth away.—John Burroughs.

The Water Spider.

A correspondent of English Country Life describes a peculiar spider that lives under water the greater part of its life. It builds a dome-like nest of silk among weeds in ponds and ditches, and fills the nest with air. In that strange house it lives and lays its eggs. In autumn it makes another nest at a greater distance below the surface of the water, and, having sealed itself inside, it sleeps until spring. Taken out of the water, the spider looks like any other, but as soon as it is put back, the bubble of air that it collects round it body makes it look like a ball of quicksilver. It is the only spider that has taken to a wholly aquatic life, says the writer.

SHORT SKIRT IS TO STAY AWHILE

Abbreviated Garment Approved by Both American and French Women.

YANKEE DESIGNERS IN LEAD

Models From the United States Are Sought by Miady of Other Lands—New Spring Creations Are Captivating.

American designers, writes a New York fashion correspondent, have taken their places once and for all as leaders in the ranks of fashion. Abroad one hears the women of fashion sighingly say, "Oh, if only I could have one of those American suits—or one of those American something else!" We are producing here some conspicuously beautiful creations, ones that are distinctly the expressions of our own personalities.

They accuse us of dressing all alike. Well, if we do, that is because the American women have refused to open their eyes sufficiently to the possibilities of these American creations, for they are not all designed alike by any manner of means, and any sameness in our dressing cannot be laid at the doors of the artists who are working so hard to set the pace along distinctive American lines.

The fashion shows this spring, presenting strictly American-made fashions, have been a treat to the eye, the erudites which once were apparent are fast disappearing, and one delights in a showing of American gowns as much because of their fine points of design and construction as because of their utter suitability to the figures which they are meant to adorn.

There is nothing which we do so well nor wear so well as the street suit for women, and there is nothing, really, which we like so well. When one returns from abroad having seen all the styles in the world, one's eyes are overjoyed at the sight of the American suit, so beautifully cut and fitted, so artistically worn. An American woman needs a suit in her wardrobe and, if her circumstances are such that she can have nothing else, then she, somehow, makes that suit fit in with every occasion demanding her presence.

Our sport clothes, too, are a national expression which has nowhere else been equaled. Our designers have combined grace and beauty, in this direction, with utility, and we have at the disposal of our buying capacities the best selection of outdoor costumes that have anywhere been gathered together. We have woven special silks for the purpose. We have imported woolsens and adapted them to our use.

Simplicity of Line.

The day dresses for this spring season produced by American designers are lovely in the simplicity of their lines and in the general way in which the materials have been handled. The coat dress is something which has received the stamp of approval from American women, and there are some new styles in this street frock which are very beautiful. Our afternoon clothes and some street dresses are partial to the use of canton crepe, a heavier and perhaps more durable version of crepe de chine. There are lovely colors in this fabric, and they have been used with great success, the trimming being very much restrained, so that the lines of the frock have every chance to tell their beauty to the world.

Gray is surely the color for American wear this season. Everything is done in gray from hats to shoes. And if the creation is not all in gray then some part of it is sure to be. Blue capes have gray linings or gray collars. Blue hats have gray trimmings. Reddish tones of trimming are applied to a gray foundation. Gray suits are the order of the day. Gray stockings are worn with black shoes, unless gray shoes are used. Always there is gray somewhere in the outfit and, since there are many tones and shades of this one color, every one of every complexion can find something in color that suits her general make-up.

Skirts here are short. Yes, they are very short, and there seems no sign that they will increase in length at present. If we adopt the longer skirts we will do it in another season, that is all there is to it, for now we are delighting in the freedom of being able to walk about without having the slightest restriction about our ankles. There are absurdities in this length of skirt, just as there are apt to be absurdities connected with any leading fashion.

Circular Skirt Is Seen.
Now and again among the newer American showings the circular skirt is seen. It is the only evidence we have of any widening of the skirt, but when it is circular it has the greatest amount of fullness used in its making.

There are so many capes among the spring wraps, and these are so graceful, that they cannot be passed by unnoticed. They are made in every fashion, from the cape of heavy homespun to that of the lightest and fluffiest of tulle for evening wear. The cape coat has been forsaken in smart dressmaking circles for the cape on strictly cape lines, which sometimes is left severely plain, and again embroidered or heavily trimmed in some way. One of these is made of heavy black satin with its lower edge embroidered for some distance with an arrangement of gray angora wool embroidery. It has a triple flounced collar that is in itself almost another cape.

Taffeta dresses are very much in favor for spring street wear. In fact, they vie with those of the canton crepe. They have, usually, fuller skirts, being made over lines that suit their texture best.

There are bouffant types in the Paris openings this spring, there are flights in a direction, there are Spanish flounces, but when all is measured, asserts a fashion authority, there remain the outstanding fact that straight lines are still a dominant characteristic and that the silhouette continues with slight divergences, practically the same as it has been. Of course, this is not meant to convey the impression that last year's frocks are good for this year. There is that subtle difference, slight though it may appear upon the surface, that marks one of the newer gowns as distinctively new. There can be no doubt about it. It has its own marks of novelty and is above everything else a spring 1921 creation.

Each of the couturiers in Paris, it would seem, has outdone himself in the creation of gowns for this latest season. The collections have been unusually large and the examples are more vivid than was expected. And the various types of gowns, it may be encouragingly reported, are thoroughly adaptable to the uses of the American woman.

Skirts Longer in Paris.
Skirts are longer in Paris—that one point is an established thing, but, just to prove that there is never one rule to govern the French couturier, Jenny has made all of her frocks and suits with skirts as short as ever they have been. To be sure, here are the youthful types, and, at any rate, those among the American women who now are rejoicing in very short skirts have Jenny to uphold their choice; they can refer to her decision if their judgment should hang in the balance.

Polnet, on the other hand, has dropped his skirts to a point below the ankles and he is making them as full as can be, with positive puffs out over the hips. All of the other couturiers range between these two levels; Callot likes them shorter, and some one else likes them longer, so there is at least a choice, and every woman has the privilege of choosing the thing that becomes her best.

Skirts are fuller, too, than they have been. A few of them are circular in cut and another few plaited. Even the straight skirts that follow the line of the figure are allowed a little more roominess than they have had recently, though those for suits and street dresses are kept fairly conservative in width.

"Short Cuts" Seldom Safe.

When you get on the wrong path the only safe thing is to work your way back to the main road. Wisdom warns against the short cuts. They might be all right, but frequently they are not. It may seem like a great waste of time to retrace your steps, but often that is the only way you can make sure of getting back where you started from. You can't be too careful in the paths of life. A thousand bypaths lead off from life's great purposes and any one of them leads to loss of power and efficiency. Some may lead to sudden fame and wealth, but such advantages are few. It's safer far to keep on the beaten path and seek to excel in it. Only the strong natures can resist the perils of the unbeaten ways, or by intuition determine the ways that lead to the proper goal. Your task is to make sure of what meets your purposes and then keep to the path until you attain the goal.—Exchange.

A Discreet Forbearance.
"Hiram," said Mrs. Cornstossel, "you don't talk politics as much as you used to." "Nope," replied her husband, "we've elected our public officials. Public officials are servants of the people, and my experience is that when you've got a good hand anxious to settle down to work it's a bad plan to worry him with idle conversation."

Few Artists Paint the Cat.

The beauty of the cat is very deceptive, for under the grace of the furry exterior lie concealed steel-like muscles. Nothing in art is more difficult than to draw or paint a cat. Those who catch the feline's softness usually miss its strength, and vice versa. Rosa Bonheur seldom painted him, preferring his less subtle brother, the lion. Landseer, after two youthful attempts, threw up the sponge.

Censure Comes to All.

It is folly for an eminent person to think of escaping censure, and a weakness to be affected by it. All the illustrious persons of antiquity, and indeed of every age, have passed through this fiery persecution. There is no defense against reproach but obscurity; it is a kind of concomitant to greatness, as satire and invectives were an essential part of a Roman triumph.—Addison.

GENERAL MEETING PARENT-TEACHERS

Mayor F. E. Little Delivers a Short Address on "Beautifying Brainerd" at Gathering

HELD IN THE HIGH SCHOOL

Last General Program of the Year Largely Attended and Many Men in Attendance

The union meeting of Parent Teachers organizations of the city, held in the high school assembly room attracted a large attendance and many men were in the audience. Following that fathers are as deeply interested as mothers in matters concerning schools and community.

Mayor F. E. Little

Mayor F. E. Little delivered an address on "Beautifying Brainerd" and impressed upon his audience the necessity of cleanliness in city environment, that it safeguarded health as well as beautifying the city. He urged that spirit of civic pride which made a city great and deprecated the state of mind of some men who have dumped rubbish and refuse in forbidden places and thus have broken city and moral laws. He hated to have to hire men to go out upon highways entering the city of Brainerd and there work to bury tin cans which other people carelessly or without intent had dumped.

He promised the cooperation of all city departments, as well as those who were able, in a clean up movement in Brainerd which would produce results.

"If there is any breaking of laws," said the mayor, "turn in the evidence and the city will act through its proper officers." He further assured petitioners in school matter the full cooperation of the city as his hearty support in bringing about law enforcement.

City Attorney Fullerton

City Attorney D. H. Fullerton spoke on "Community Work". He explained the work of the council. It was primarily interested in community work and aimed to carry on its program by following the line laid down by the city charter. However it was limited in expenditure. It would do more if it had the money. There was need of organizations like the Northeast Brainerd Improvement club, the various Parent-Teachers organizations and others to keep alive a civic spirit and to carry out many works of improvement benefiting the entire community.

The juvenile situation was one that required attention. While adult delinquency was decreasing, that of small children and minors was increasing.

Miss Irene English

Miss Irene English spoke on the profession of nursing, the opportunities for advancement, the service to the community, etc. The profession was an indispensable one and commanded excellent pay. Conditions were explained by Miss English and the need for improvement in schooling nurses. A school for nursing was as important a branch of college work as the school for doctors or for mining engineers. Today but few colleges had so raised the profession of nursing to a level commensurate with its importance.

The opportunities for service were great. There was the public health nurse field, tuberculosis work, etc. No profession prepared one for a better service than nursing.

Other Numbers

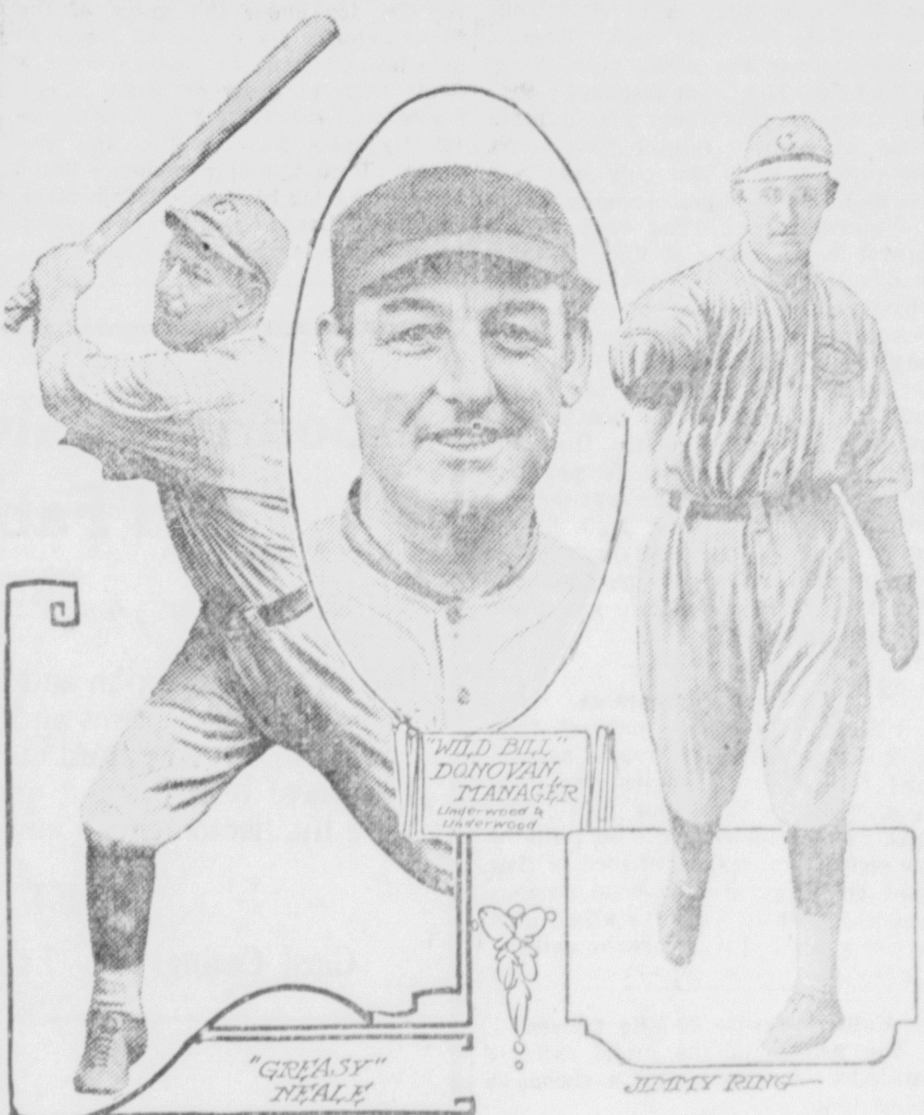

Other numbers of the program were a fine recitation by Miss Hillard, singing by grade school classes, musical selections by the high school orchestra, community singing led by B. Randall, Prof. W. C. Cobb voiced the appreciation of the parent teachers associations and thanked all who had taken part in the program.

Attention was called to the community singing Decoration Day and the audience sang four of the songs which will be on the program that day. It is expected to sing in Gregory park at 9:30 a. m. on Decoration Day.

Musician Out of Tune

"Gas pressure in my stomach sometimes distressed me so that I could not think. I played out of tune and twice lost my position. No medicine helped me and I became disheartened. Another musician advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and I am now enjoying the best of health." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. BILL DONOVAN AIMS TO GIVE BUGS BETTER BRAND OF BALL

Quakertown has been sitting in on cellar baseball for several seasons. The Phils have gradually declined from pennant winner under Pat Moran to the bottom of the ladder.

Wild Bill Donovan, former boss of the old New York Highlanders, will try his hand with the destinies of the National league club this season. The fans are looking to him to get them some kind of a winner. Quakertown isn't crazy for a pennant. The bugs just want something in baseball, not the worst.

"I'm not making any promises or predictions, but I do think that I can mold something out of the material at hand that will not run last," Donovan said.

"The club needs strengthening in several departments. I would like to have some young blood behind the bat and a good peppery infielder. But any one who follows baseball knows that wanting players and getting them are two very different things.

"The trade we made with the Cincinnati Reds strengthened our club, even if it is claimed we got the worst of it. Rixey was a good pitcher, there is no doubt of that, but I think Jimmy Ring can win just as many games. Neale is a good ball player and will add strength to our outfield."

DOES NOT BELONG IN CITY

When the Arabian Musical Instrument, the Argul, Comes to Town, It 'Degenerates.

In Cairo the argul is played at night in the old city, and on the streets of the underworld, lending its note and interpretation to love songs that somehow follow when everything else in life has been lost or left behind, writes Robert Hamilton Rucker in Asia Magazine. At an Arabian cafe an old man from the street will play and young men will sing while the coffee is being made. The argul sings with each and talks with each, sympathizes, understands and seems so earnest as to make one half believe that the young man is singing from his own heart and that the argul, long accustomed to such confidence, knows it full well.

But, like many of the country bred, it seems to degenerate when it comes to town. It falls upon evil ways; it sings of love to the loveless; it hovers about the low cafes. Its friend, the tabla—more pretentious, and perhaps more astute—changes its name when it comes to town and does not appear alone at night in dark, unfrequented streets. It is known as the darabukkeh, and is seen in the high-class cafes where favorites dance to the music it brings. It has more rhythm than melody; much volume but little feeling. It talks from the head and sings to the feet.

But the argul is all sentiment and sympathy. Its place is the desert; its home, we knew as we listened there on the rugs in front of our tents, is in the wastes of the sandy plain and the stillness of the starlit night.

Days of Reel Sport

BACK in the old days—"go in" fishing required little preparation aside from a "can o' worms" and a cane pole. They were great days though—days which now live only in memory, but which are often referred to as "The Days of Reel Sport."

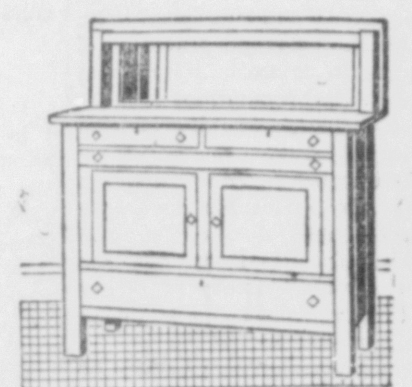

However, these days are not really gone. Time has but changed our angling methods. Nowadays, they're "The Days of Reel Sport"—the days of going after game fish with the proper tackle, such as is shown here.

CAR DEPARTMENT ON 6 DAY WEEK

Announcement made Today by Northern Pacific Railway Shops and Proves Welcome News

CHANGE AFFECTS 450 MEN

Means an Increase in Payroll of About $6,000 a Month, Begins Saturday, May 14

Welcome news for Brainerd and the Northern Pacific railway shops is the announcement that commencing Saturday, May 14, the car department employing from 450 to 475 men will go on a six day week schedule. The men have hitherto worked five days a week, omitting Saturdays.

The extra time making it a six days a week schedule means an increase of approximately $6,000 a month in pay.

Increased hours at the shops in one department indicates that other departments may also soon feel the impetus of enlarged railway operations testifying to a general revival of business throughout the United States.

At one time the steel market served as a business barometer, but now the railway shop work also serves as an indicator.

The plant is situated southeast of Evergreen cemetery. Mr. Porwoll is the son of Paul J. Porwoll of St. Cloud, and has been a lifelong resident of the city. He is a capable granite man, and carries with him the good wishes of a host of friends in his new venture.—St. Cloud Daily Journal Press.

The ladies of the First Congregational church will hold a sale of food and of useful articles at the Y. M. C. A. building on Saturday, May 14 during the afternoon. A 15 cent lunch will be served and the men are specially invited to drop in to lunch.

No Dogs, Births or Deaths.

No births, no deaths, no dogs. A tract of land subject to these singular prohibitions is the sacred island of Miyajima, situated most gorgeously in the inland sea of Japan. With the trifling exceptions of entering the world, leaving it, or starting a "kennel," you may do practically what you choose there.

Stringent religious regulations, dating far back into history, forbid these small adventures.

Occasionally a baby, anxious to begin existence, hurries into the world before its time.

Nowadays humanitarianism is stronger than Shinto law, and no more terrible penalty is exacted from the unlucky mother than that she shall be moved to the mainland as soon as possible, and remain there for 30 days.

As for death, once the poor sufferer at this last gasp was ferried across to some other shore lest his final breath should pollute sacred soil.

Now, if needs must, he is allowed to die in peace, but his body is instantly removed to Ono for burial, and the chief mourners who attend the funeral are obliged to absent themselves from Miyajima for 50 days of ceremonial purification.—From Continental Edition of the London Mail.

Moor Hens.

Lord Grey of Fallodon in his leisure time has been watching the ways of moor hens living in his garden, and tells an interesting story of their scheme of coping with their growing families. The second brood of a season follows quickly on the first, and the elder children are given duties and responsibilities. They help to feed the young ones, passing on food given them by the parents. They help in building nursery nests, and when the parents are rearing the third brood they are often left in sole charge of the second.

CROPS ARE LOOKING WELL IN COUNTY

Diversified Farming, Now as in the Past, is the Main Bulwark of the County

SPRING GRAINS LOOKING WELL

Farmers Planting Soy Beans, Sweet Clover, Timothy, Oats, Etc., to Replace Other Crops

Crops are looking good in Crow Wing county, said E. G. Roth, county agricultural agent. This includes grains put in this spring. Fruits are in good shape and large blossoms are carried. Plum and apple trees are loaded with blossoms.

Potatoes are being planted and the acreage, assured of being normal, may be larger than last year. The farmers are putting in lots of soy beans, sweet clover, timothy, oats for hay, and quite a little clover. The latter grains and grasses are to repair the damage caused by the open winter when light snow proved no protection for the stand of clover, two-thirds of it freezing, and the winter rye suffered too, a large amount freezing.

To replace the loss of clover heavy seeding was done in the spring. The county agent's office sold from 25,000 to 30,000 pounds and then had to turn down some twenty additional applications, having disposed of its seed quota.

Crow Wing county is a section where farmers carry on diversified farming and there has never been a total crop failure at any time. If any one crop was not doing well, there were other things to take its place.

BOTH PARTIES PREPARING FOR THE SENATORIAL ELECTION OF NEXT YEAR.

TERMS OF 32 END IN 1923

Nearly All of Them, It Is Believed,
Will Seek to Be Returned to the Upper House—Some Warm Contests Expected.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—Already the two political parties are preparing for the senatorial campaign preceding the elections in the fall of 1922. Senator Miles Poindexter, Republican, of Washington, who was the chairman of the Republican senatorial committee during the last campaign, decided not to serve again, and Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois was chosen in his place.

The chairman of the Democratic senatorial committee for the next campaign has not at this writing been chosen, but shortly he will be named, and the two party campaigns will go forward simultaneously. On March 23, 1923, the terms of office of thirty-two senators will expire. Sixteen Democrats and sixteen Republicans will go out of office. It is merely an accident of politics that there is this equal division of service expirations. There are ninety-six United States senators and every two years one-third of them leave office.

The Republican and Democratic chairmen of the two senatorial campaign committees have work ahead of them. It will be the task of each to attempt to re-elect all of his party brethren whose terms of office expire two years from now, and to try to put other party men into seats now held by the political enemy. It is not the custom to appoint as chairman of the committee any senator who has a contest in his own behalf on his hands. This is the reason why Senator Poindexter of Washington state stood aside for another.

Nearly All Seek Re-Election.

It is possible, of course, that some of the Democrats and some of the Republicans now sitting in the senate, and who have little less than two years to serve, will not care to be candidates for re-election, but it is believed that nearly every senator whose term expires two years from now has an ambition to serve again. There are some Republicans who represent states which are more than a trifle doubtful. An extensive campaign will be carried on in the states usually represented by Democrats but in which the Republicans now have representation, in order to insure if possible the continued service in the senate of Republicans from these states.

PROF. CHAIM WEIZZMAN

The reverse of this proposition is true. There are some Democrats in the senate who represent states which ordinarily are Republican. The effort, of course, of their campaign committee will be to return them to the senate.

The Democrats whose terms of office expire March 3, 1923, are Ashurst of Arizona, Culberson of Texas, Gerry of Rhode Island, Hitchcock of Nebraska, Jones of New Mexico, Kendrick of Wyoming, King of Utah, McKellar of Tennessee, Myers of Montana, Pittman of Nevada, Pomerene of Ohio, Reed of Missouri, Swanson of Virginia, Williams of Mississippi, Wolcott of Delaware.

The Republicans whose terms expire on March 3, 1923, are Calder of New York, France of Maryland, Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Hale of Maine, Johnson of California, Kellogg of Minnesota, Knox of Pennsylvania, La Follette of Wisconsin, Lodge of Massachusetts, McCumber of North Dakota, McLean of Connecticut, New of Indiana, Page of Vermont, Poindexter of Washington, Sutherland of West Virginia, and Townsend of Michigan.

Where Fights Will Be Hottest.

It is probable that there will be hard fighting in Nebraska, Wyoming, Rhode Island, Utah and Ohio, to elect Republican successors to the Democratic senators now holding office from these states. The records show that usually the states named have been Republican in their majorities.

Every effort will be made by the Democrats to redeem from "Recaptivity" the senate seats held by New of Indiana and France of Maryland. Maryland is now represented by two Republican senators, although the state generally is regarded as being safe for the Democracy. A Republican senator, Ovington E. Weller, was elected last fall when the Republicans swept pretty nearly everything before them. The term of office of Senator Joseph I. France expires in 1923 and the Democratic senatorial committee will bend every effort to secure his defeat.

There is an interesting situation from the point of view of both parties in the State of Missouri. The Republicans say that they have more than a fighting chance to repeat the performance of last fall when they elected Selden P. Spencer of St. Louis.

Aye, Aye!

"I'm afraid by eyes are going back on me," said the egotist. "Don't worry!" replied his candid friend. "You have an inexhaustible supply."—Boston Transcript.

Had a Long Family Tree.

Queen Elizabeth was a victim to the weakness for long red peppers. Among the treasures of Hatfield is a genealogical tree, forty-two feet long, which was drawn up for Elizabeth, tracing her descent back to Adam. In the more modern portion of the pedigree admirably painted coats of arms are attached to all the names, together with the dates of birth and death. It is curious to note that Queen Elizabeth's coats of arms filled up one side only. The other side is left blank, presumably for the arms of the husband whom it was thought her majesty would come time or other deign to accept.

ENDS SHOULD BE VARNISHED

Agricultural Department Tells How to Prevent Door From Sticking on Damp Days.

A door which sticks to the frame every damp day is not conducive to unruffled feelings on the part of those who use it. The forest products laboratory of the United States Department of Agriculture at Madison, Wis., has made public a method which obviates the difficulty.

Wood specialists there say that the fact that the top and bottom edges of a door are practically always left unfinished is largely responsible for its troublesome habit of swelling and shrinking. The exposed ends of the vertical stiles give the most bother, because wood picks up or gives off moisture more rapidly through surfaces cut across the grain than through those cut parallel to the grain.

If the doors in a house are to shut easily and fit tightly, it is important that their top and bottom edges be protected by paint or varnish. If it is necessary to refit the door after it is hung, the freshly exposed surface should be refinished at once.

Used Nature's Gifts.

There are no indications that in remote time either oil or gas was put to much practical use as modern people understand that term, but there is little doubt that priests of the fire-worshipping cult which flourished in old Persia made "good things" out of the phenomena. Not far from Baku are the ruins of a temple of the cult which is believed to have been in existence for more than 2,500 years. Tower beacons and altars are provided with channels concealed in the masonry, which demonstrate that gasfitting is not a craft of modern birth. These channels led from fissures in the earth which once furnished natural gas. To this temple came pilgrims from all parts of the East as late as the eighties of the last century. Besides the walls of the temple today stands a modern refinery, furnishing an emphatic contrast in the old and new uses of Nature's gift of oil and gas.

Love.

"Dear Mame: What you asked me about did I love Charlie, well, dear, it's this way. I'm afraid if I don't take him I'll be sorry, and if I do I'll regret it, because I can't live without him any more than I expect I'll be able to live with him. It's just so exciting being miserable until I'm happy, that if I ain't in love with him I might as well find it out one way as another, and so we're going to get married if I don't change my mind, and if I do, the Lord have mercy on my soul, Mame, because he's an awful lemon if he has got a job! So that's how it is, dearie, and they tell me it's just perfectly natural, like the measles."

"I'll send you an invitation, and when you see me walking down the aisle with him, for the love of Mike, Mame, don't giggle. This is too darned serious for you to act like you feel like."

MINNIE.

Exaggerations.

"America is a wonderful country," said the distinguished visitor as the ship was landing.

"Yes," ventured the intrepid interviewer; "but it isn't nearly as extraordinary as you gentlemen from abroad make it appear when you write your first impressions of it."

Time Enough.

"Am I right in surmising that you have something of serious import to say to my daughter?"

"Oh, no, sir. I'm merely going to propose a bet. I'll talk over the serious details with you after the tea."

Now get the same cut service as the big city dailies.

We have made arrangements with the Murray Illustrated Advertising Company of New York, for the furnishing of cuts for advertising purposes absolutely free to our patrons. This service is the best in America and has as clients some of the largest newspapers published.

Never before has it been possible for a paper to furnish this service without a considerable added outlay on the part of the advertiser, and even now it is only offered to the paper recognized by advertisers and readers as the leader in its section.

The Dispatch buys the cuts; the advertiser pays for the space in the paper at the same rate as for other advertising. Many of our patrons have already taken advantage of this offer and others are invited to do so.

We will be glad to explain the matter more fully
